What Is the EVA Air Baggage Allowance for International Flights?

The Eva air baggage allowance international system can vary depending on the route and fare conditions. EVA Air generally uses different free checked-baggage allowances according to cabin class and itinerary.

For checked luggage, Economy and Premium Economy pieces generally cannot exceed 23 kilograms per piece, while Business and higher premium cabins can have a 32-kilogram maximum per piece. The total linear dimensions of a checked bag generally cannot exceed 158 centimeters or 62 inches.

Because the number of free pieces can vary, travelers should verify the allowance shown with their individual booking.

How Much Carry-On Baggage Can You Take?

The Eva air baggage allowance carry on rules allow Royal Laurel, Premium Laurel, and Business Class passengers to bring two pieces of hand luggage, with each piece weighing no more than 7 kilograms. Premium Economy and Economy passengers are permitted one piece weighing up to 7 kilograms.

The maximum size for each standard carry-on is 23 × 36 × 56 centimeters, or 9 × 14 × 22 inches. The total linear measurement should not exceed 115 centimeters.

Personal items are treated separately from this standard carry-on dimension requirement, although they must still comply with cabin-storage and safety requirements.

What Is the EVA Air Baggage Allowance for Economy Class?

The Eva air baggage allowance economy depends on the itinerary and fare. While the maximum weight per checked piece for Economy is generally 23 kilograms, the number of pieces included can differ.

Travelers should look at their ticket or booking confirmation to determine the exact free baggage allowance. Do not assume that every Economy ticket includes the same number of checked bags, particularly when comparing different routes or fare products.

What Is the EVA Air Checked Baggage Weight?

The EVA Air checked baggage weight limit for Premium Economy and Economy is generally 23 kilograms per piece. For Royal Laurel, Premium Laurel, and Business Class, the maximum weight is generally 32 kilograms per piece.

If your bag is heavier than the free allowance, an additional baggage charge may apply. EVA Air's published rules state that bags above 32 kilograms may require special handling or may need to be transported as cargo depending on the weight.

Weigh your luggage before leaving home so you have time to rearrange your belongings if necessary.

Does EVA Air Charge for Extra Baggage?

The EVA Air Extra baggage fee international varies according to the travel zone and the type of excess involved. EVA Air calculates excess baggage charges using zone-based rates, and additional fees may apply when luggage is overweight or oversized.

For example, a bag exceeding the standard Economy weight but remaining within certain maximum limits can attract an overweight charge. Oversized bags can also incur additional fees.

Since rates vary by route, it is best to check the applicable baggage chart for your itinerary rather than relying on a fixed worldwide fee.

What Does Check-in Baggage Mean on EVA Air?

Check-in baggage - EVA Air refers to luggage that is handed over to the airline at the airport check-in counter and transported in the aircraft's baggage compartment.

Before checking your bags, confirm their weight and dimensions. Each piece should comply with the applicable allowance, and fragile or valuable belongings should be packed appropriately.

Passengers should also avoid placing prohibited or restricted articles in checked luggage. Certain items have specific transportation requirements, so reviewing the airline's restrictions before departure can prevent delays.

What About International Carry-On Size?

The EVA air baggage allowance international carry-on requirement generally limits each standard cabin bag to 23 × 36 × 56 centimeters and 7 kilograms for eligible cabin classes.

If your bag is too large or heavy, the airline may require it to be checked. This can be particularly important for travelers using expandable suitcases because an apparently compliant bag may exceed the limit after packing.

What Is the EVA Air Checked Baggage Size?

The EVA Air checked baggage size international standard generally uses a maximum total linear dimension of 158 centimeters or 62 inches for each checked piece.

Measure the height, width, and length of your suitcase and add those three measurements together. This provides a simple way to determine whether the bag is within the published size requirement.
